

Faith & relationship

One day a cow wandered away from her hoard and walked towards a lioness.

When she came near to the lioness, she suddenly realize that she was far away from the hoard and she became worried.

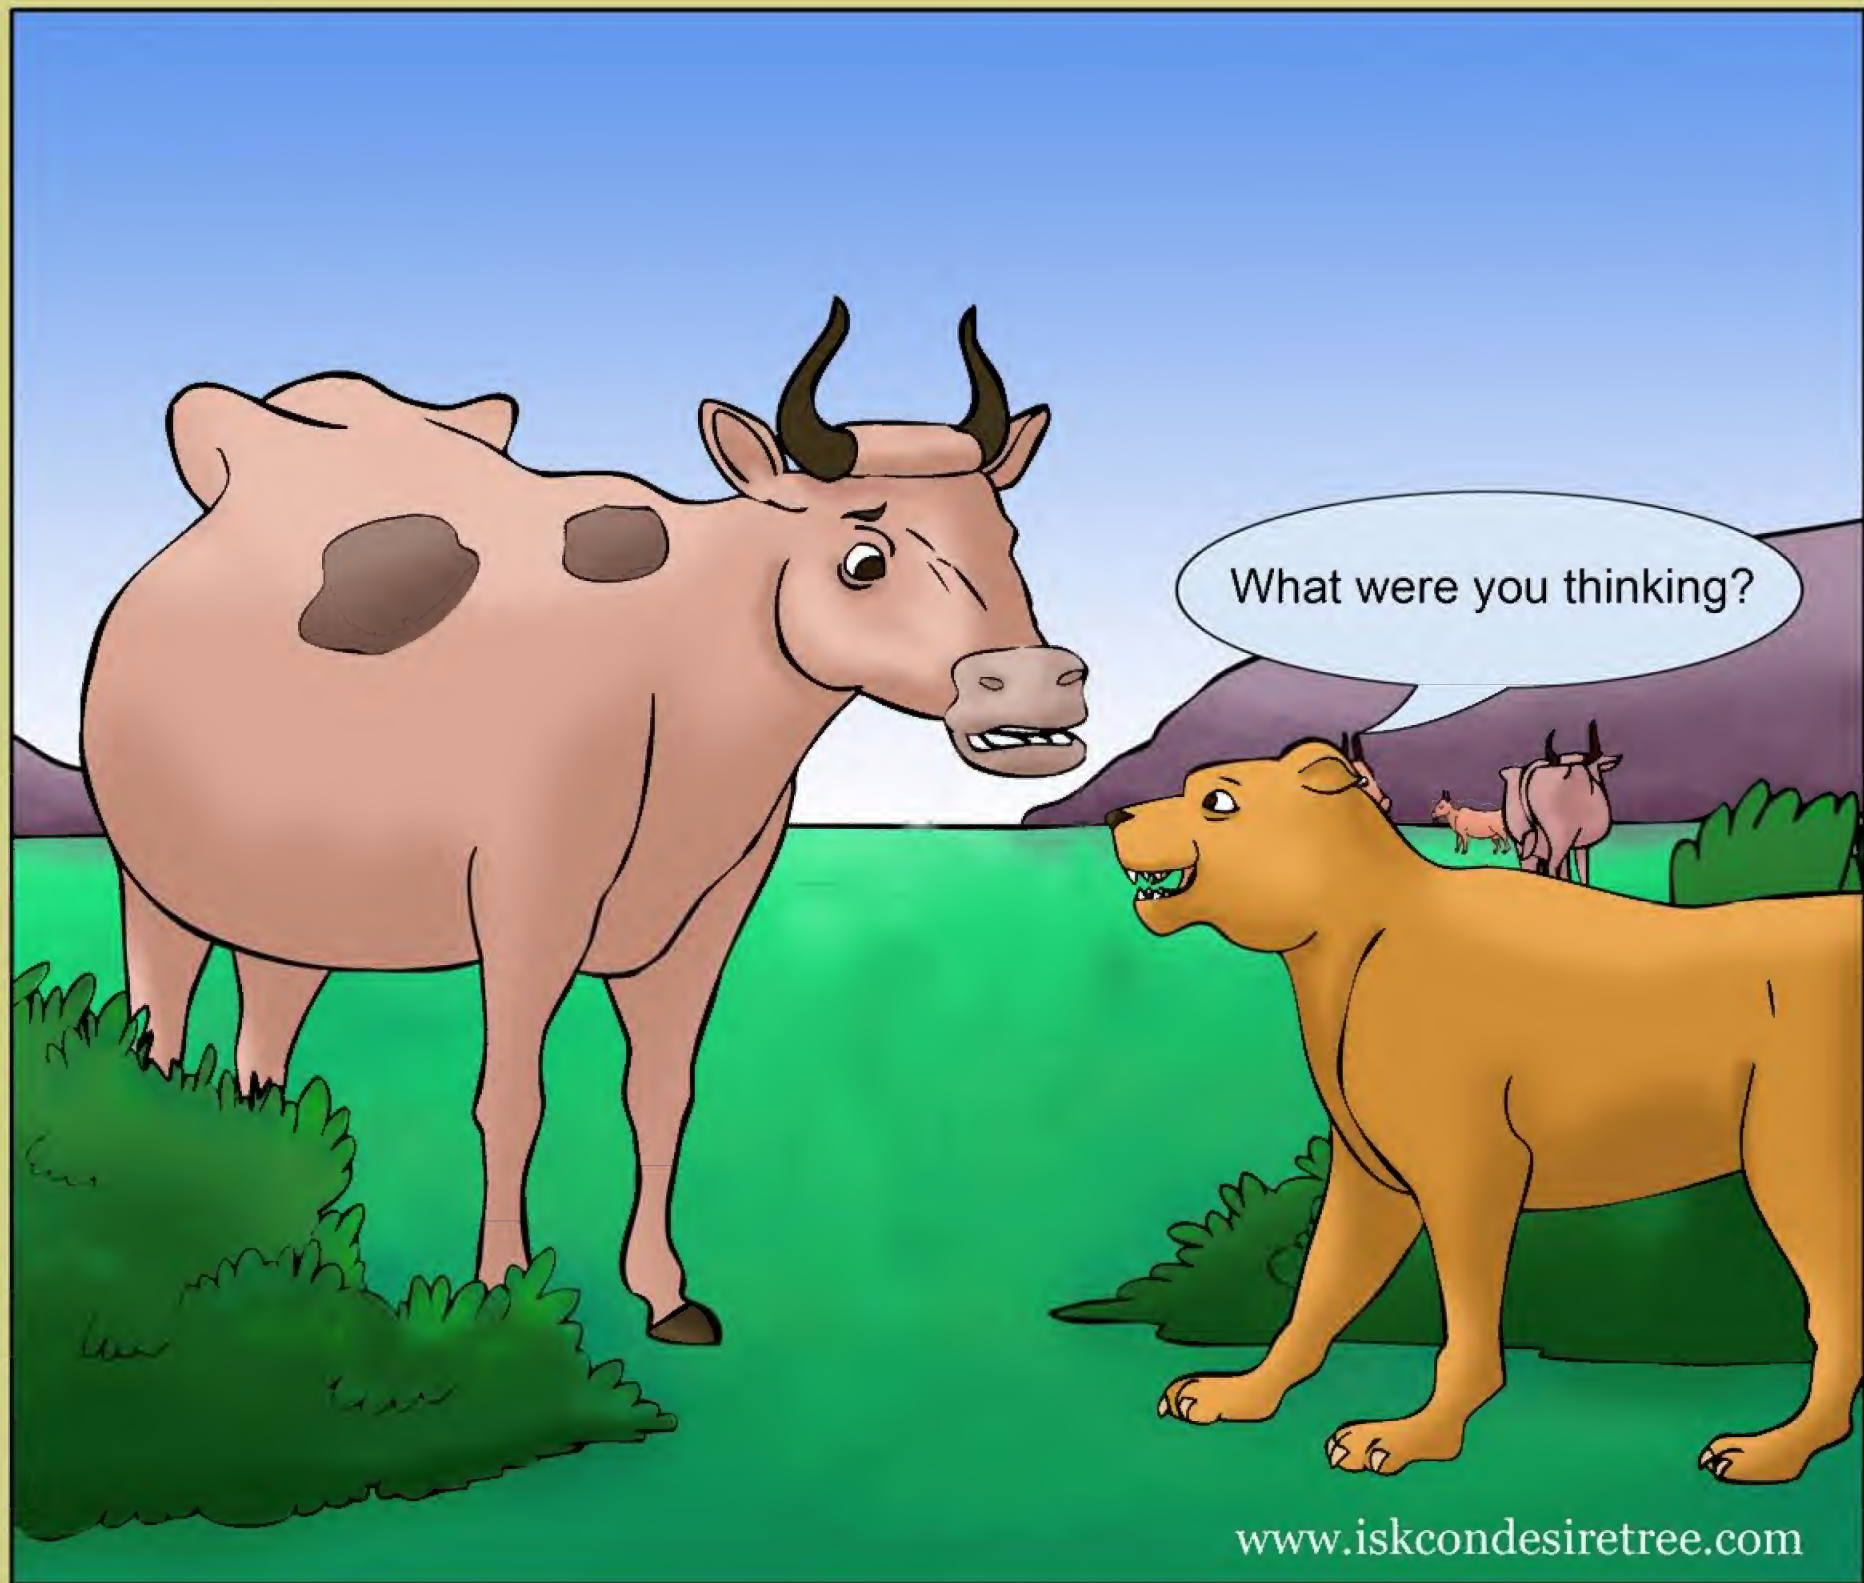

Don't be scared
I just had a very good lunch so you are saved.

The cow became happy because her life was saved.

Thank you.
Actually I was so deep in my thoughts that I wandered far away
from my hoard.

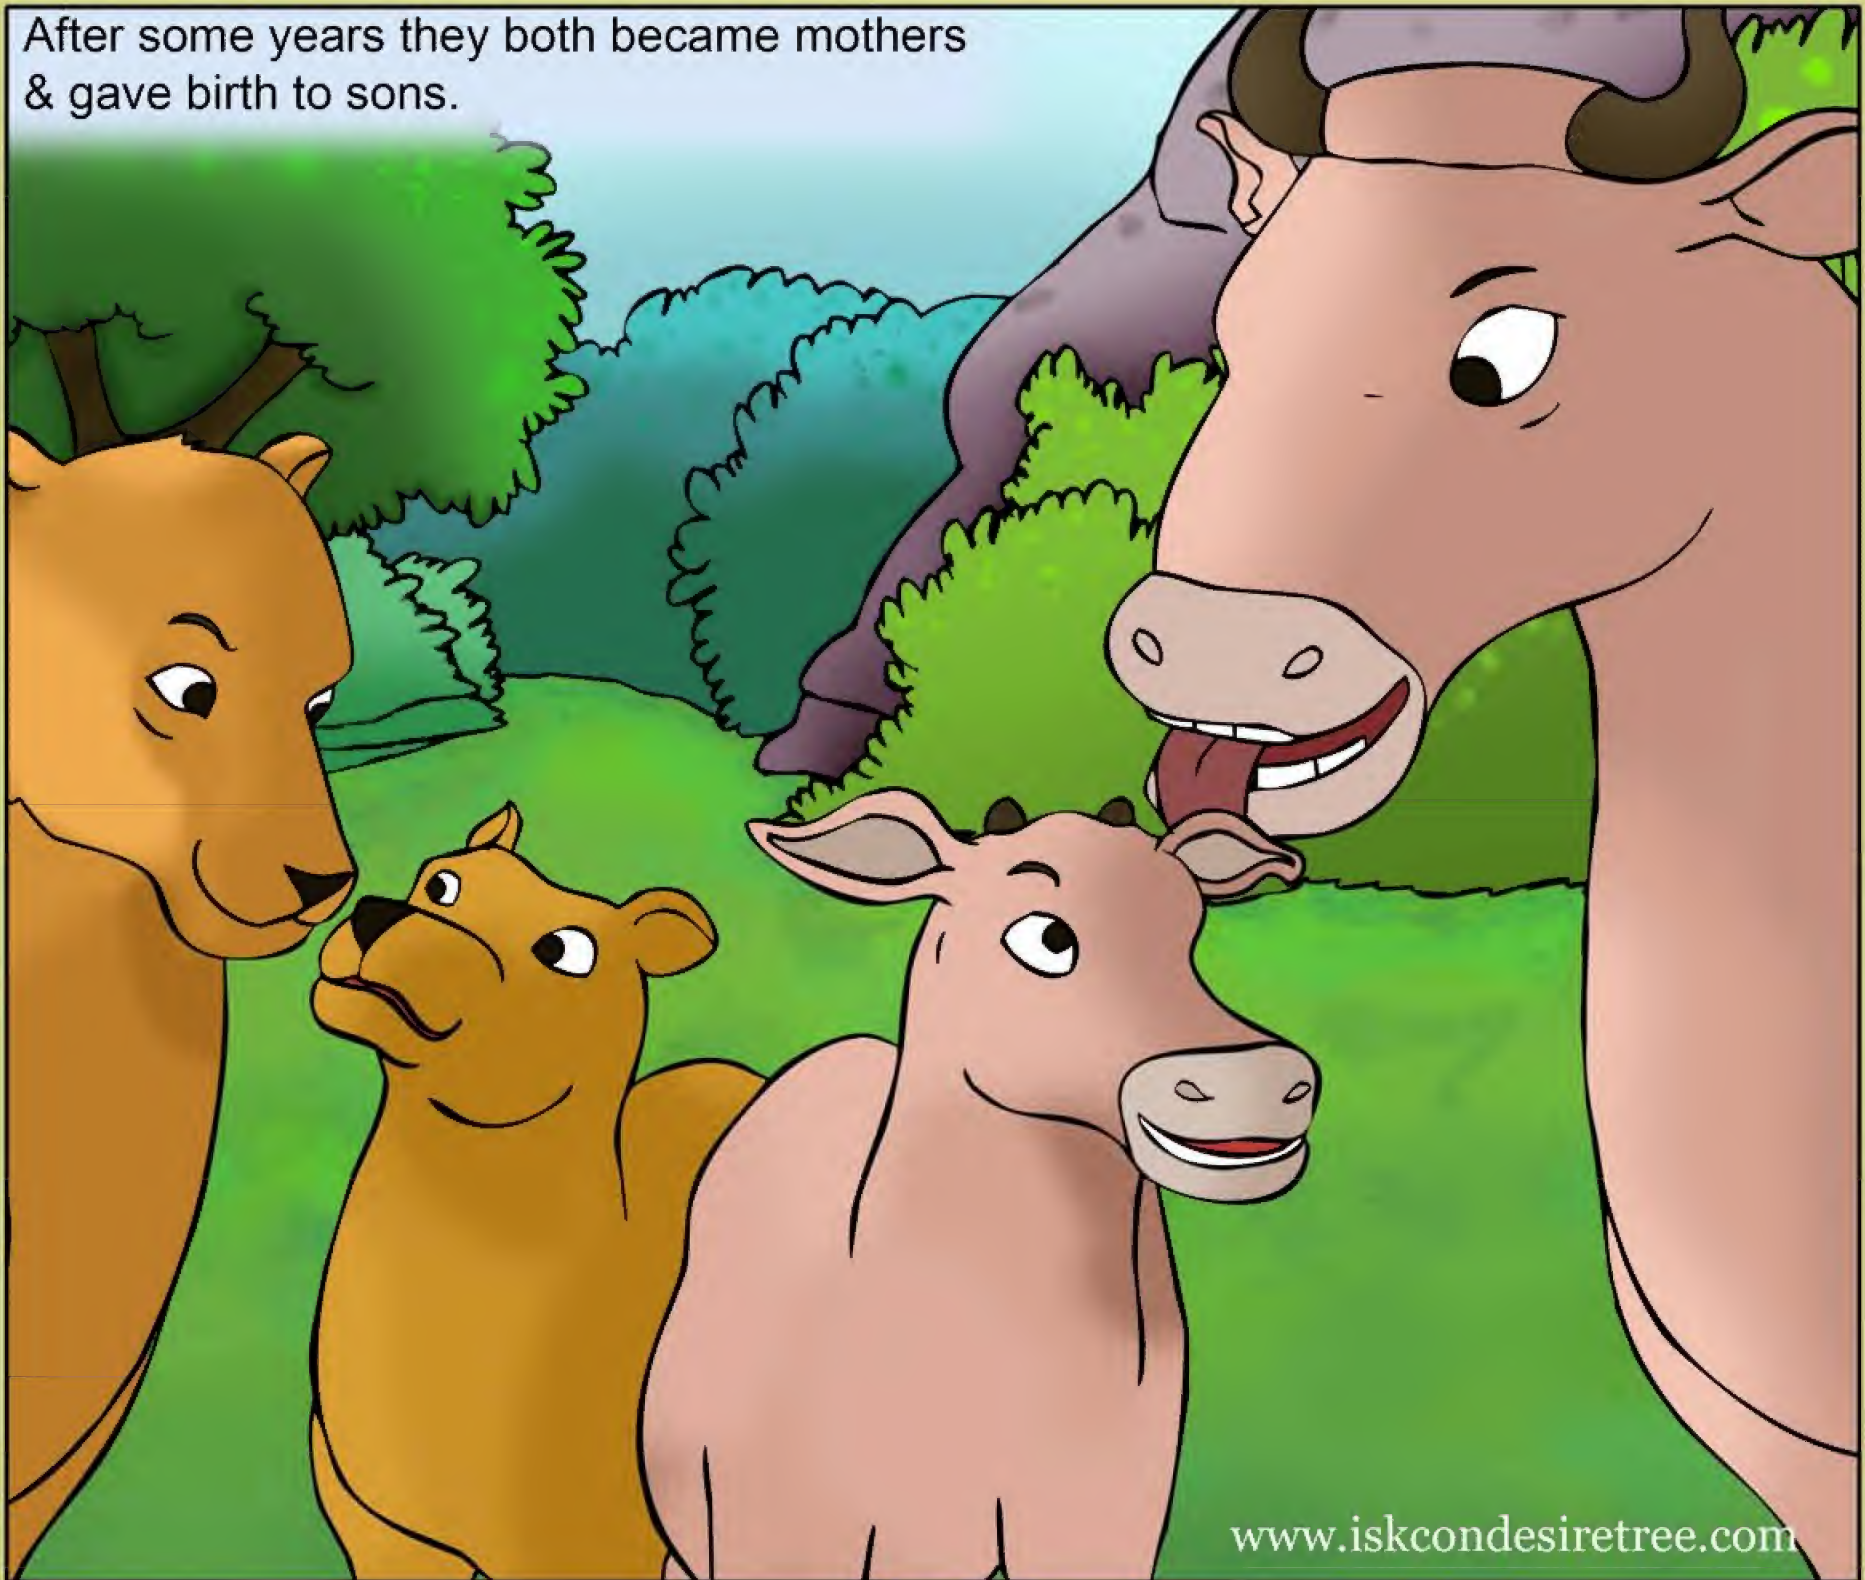

What were you thinking?

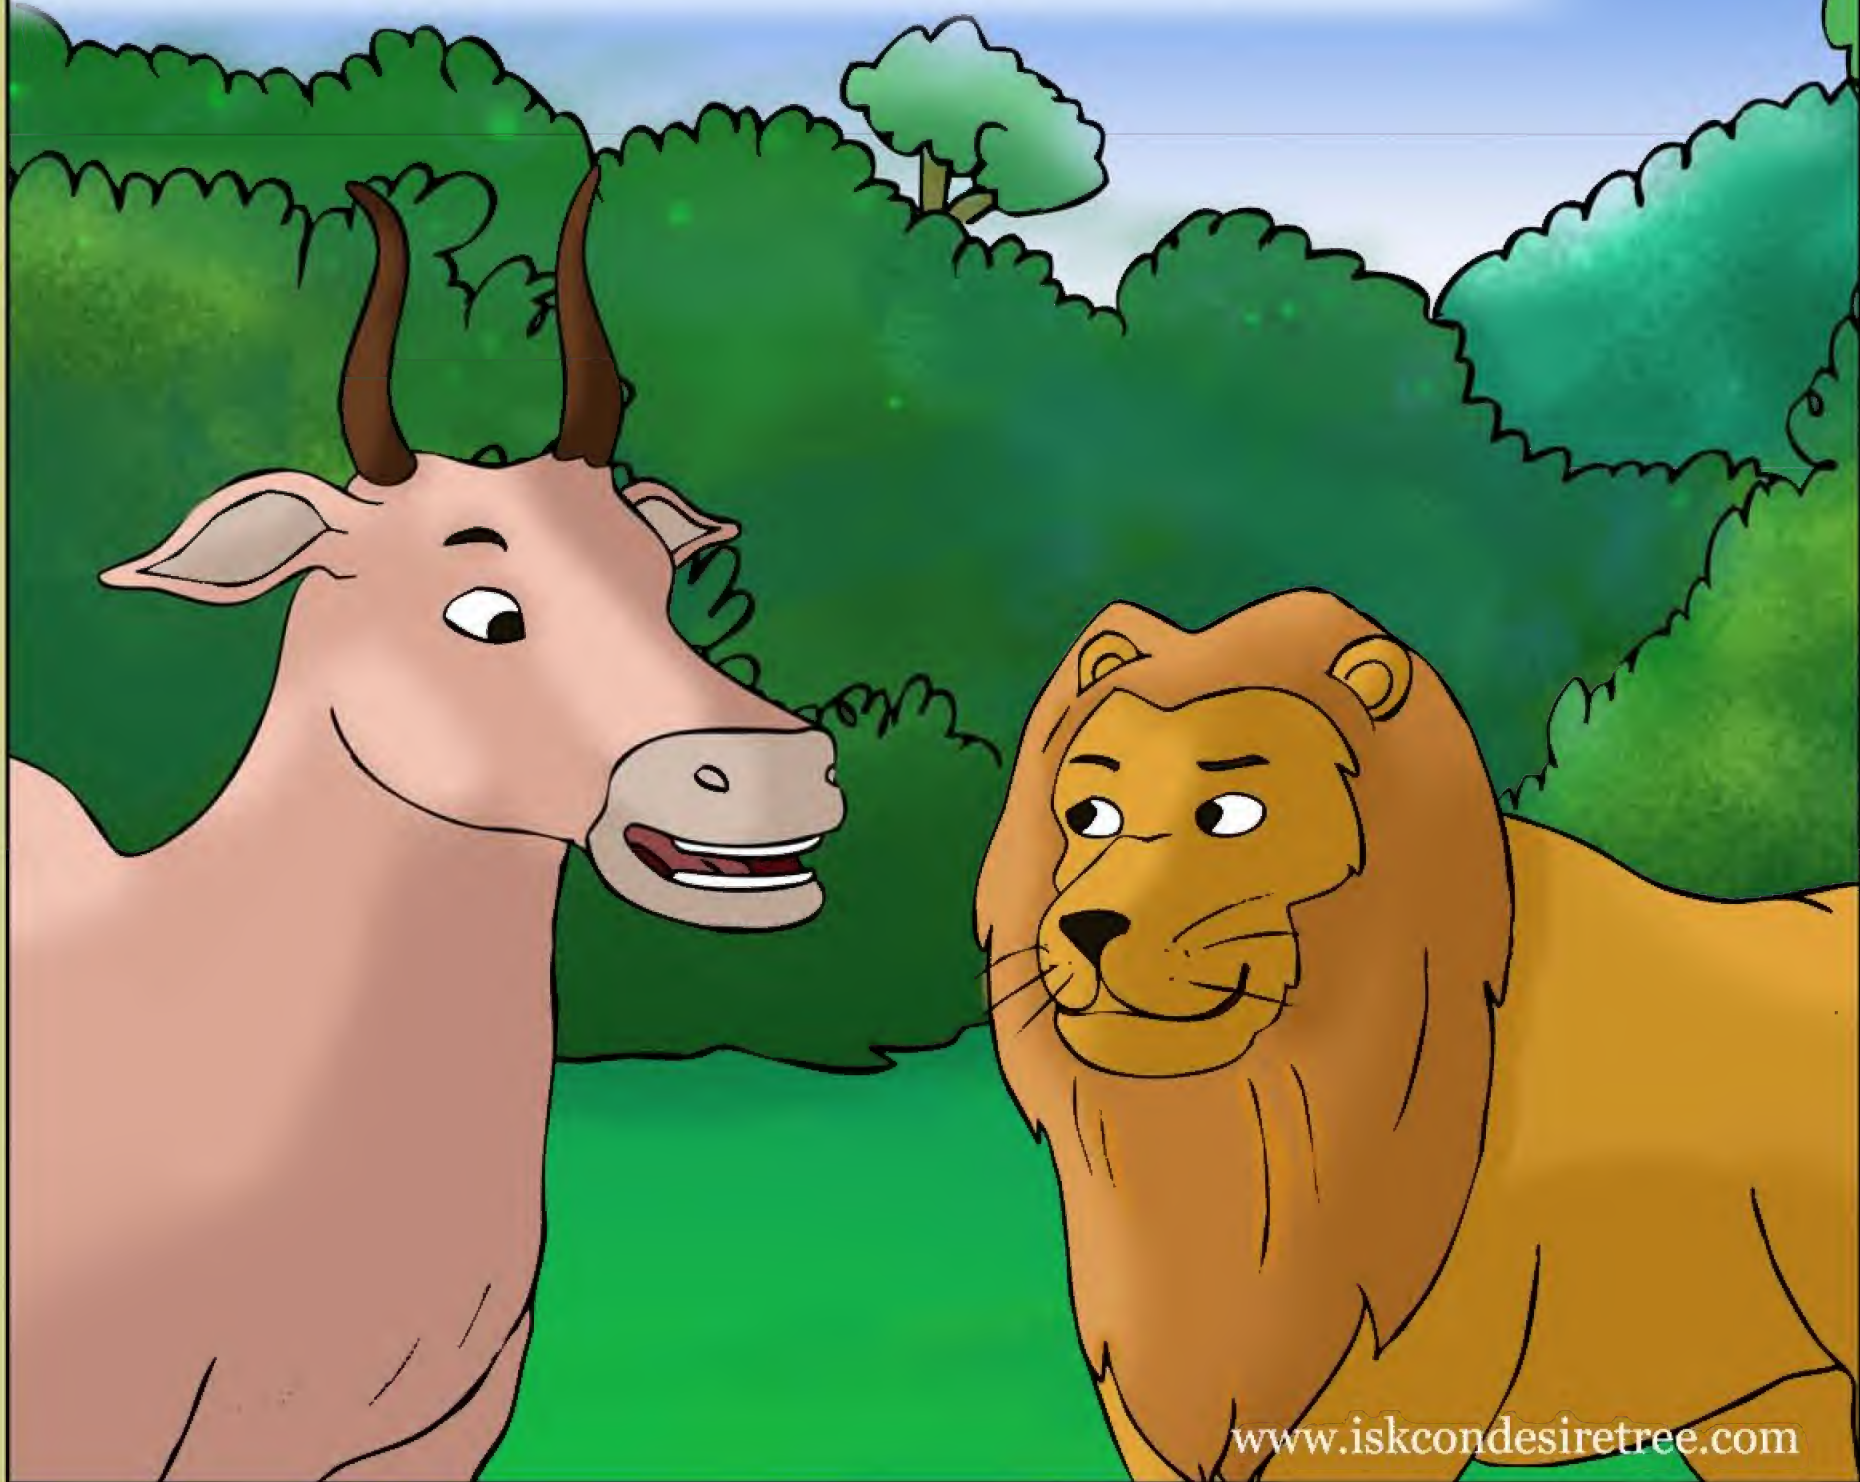

In this way their conversation started and after some time they became good friends.

After some years they both became mothers & gave birth to sons.

As their parents, the young lion and the bull too became good friends.

A young jackal was always waiting to get a chance to eat meat of lion and the bull. He knew that it was possible for him and the only way he can have was if they killed each other.

One day the young Jackal was informed by his friend about the death of lioness and the cow. He knew that it was the right time to break the friendship of their sons - the bull and the lion

He first went to the lion and said...

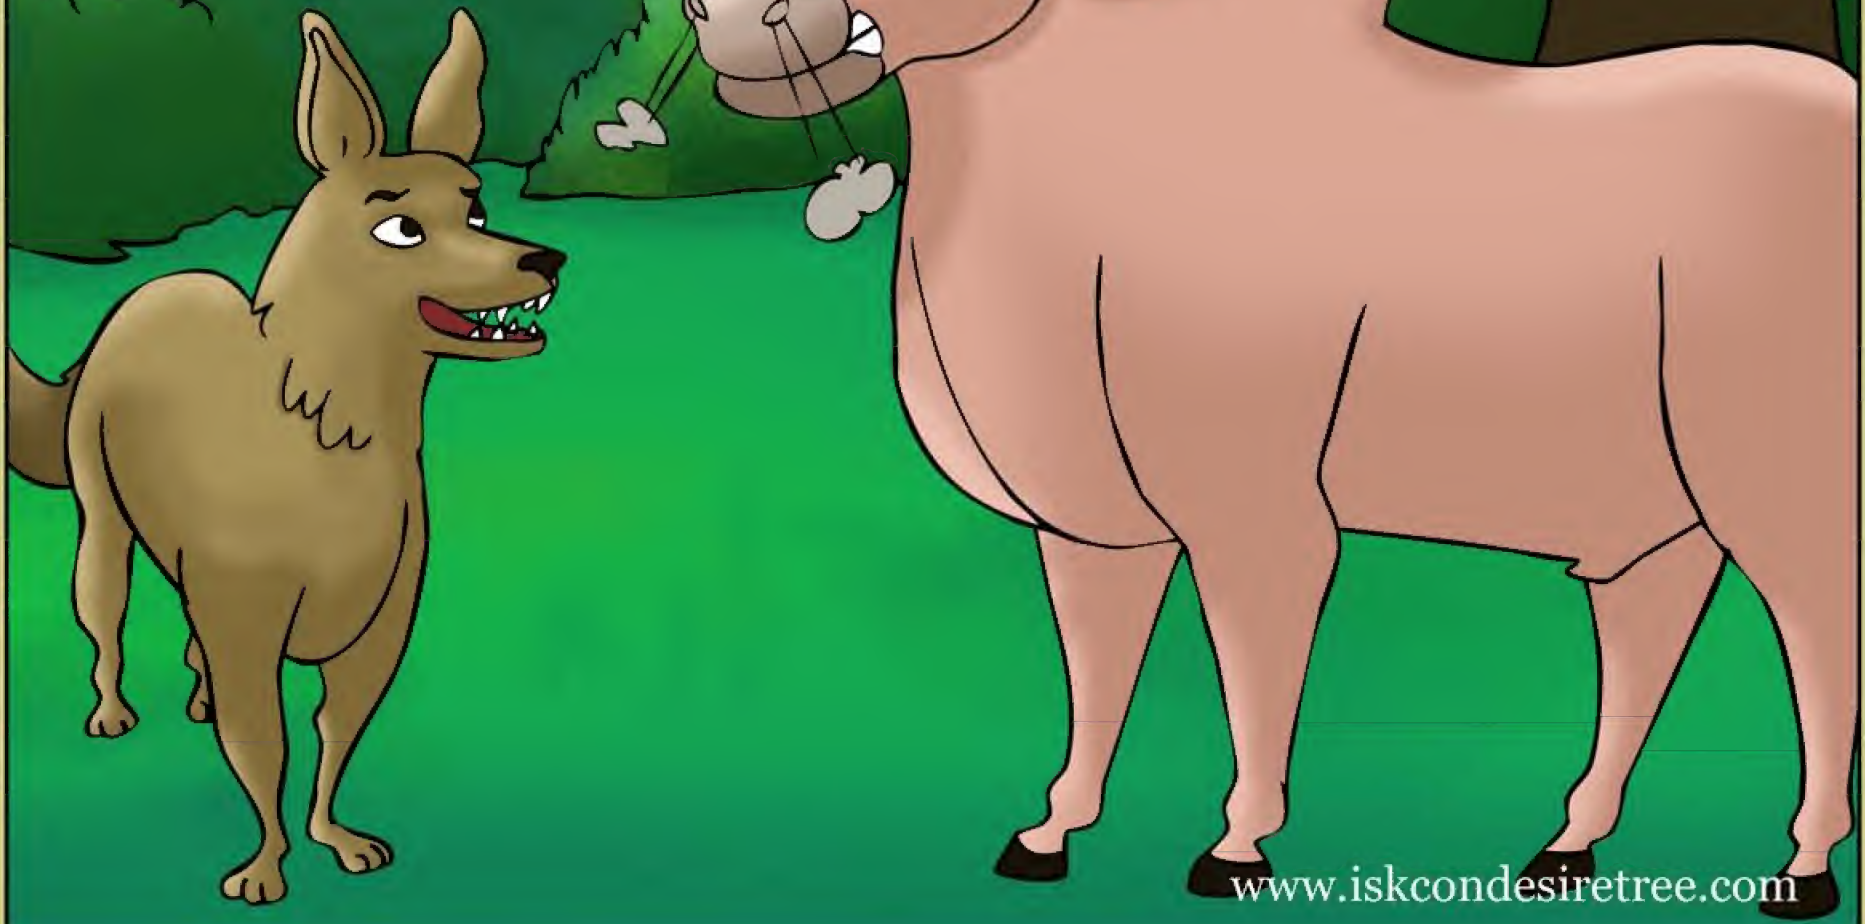

Both of your parents are dead. The bull will now try to take your place and become the king of the jungle. I'm just warning you. Be careful and take your decisions properly.

But the Lion did not give any importance to his words.

The jackal then went & agitated the bull...

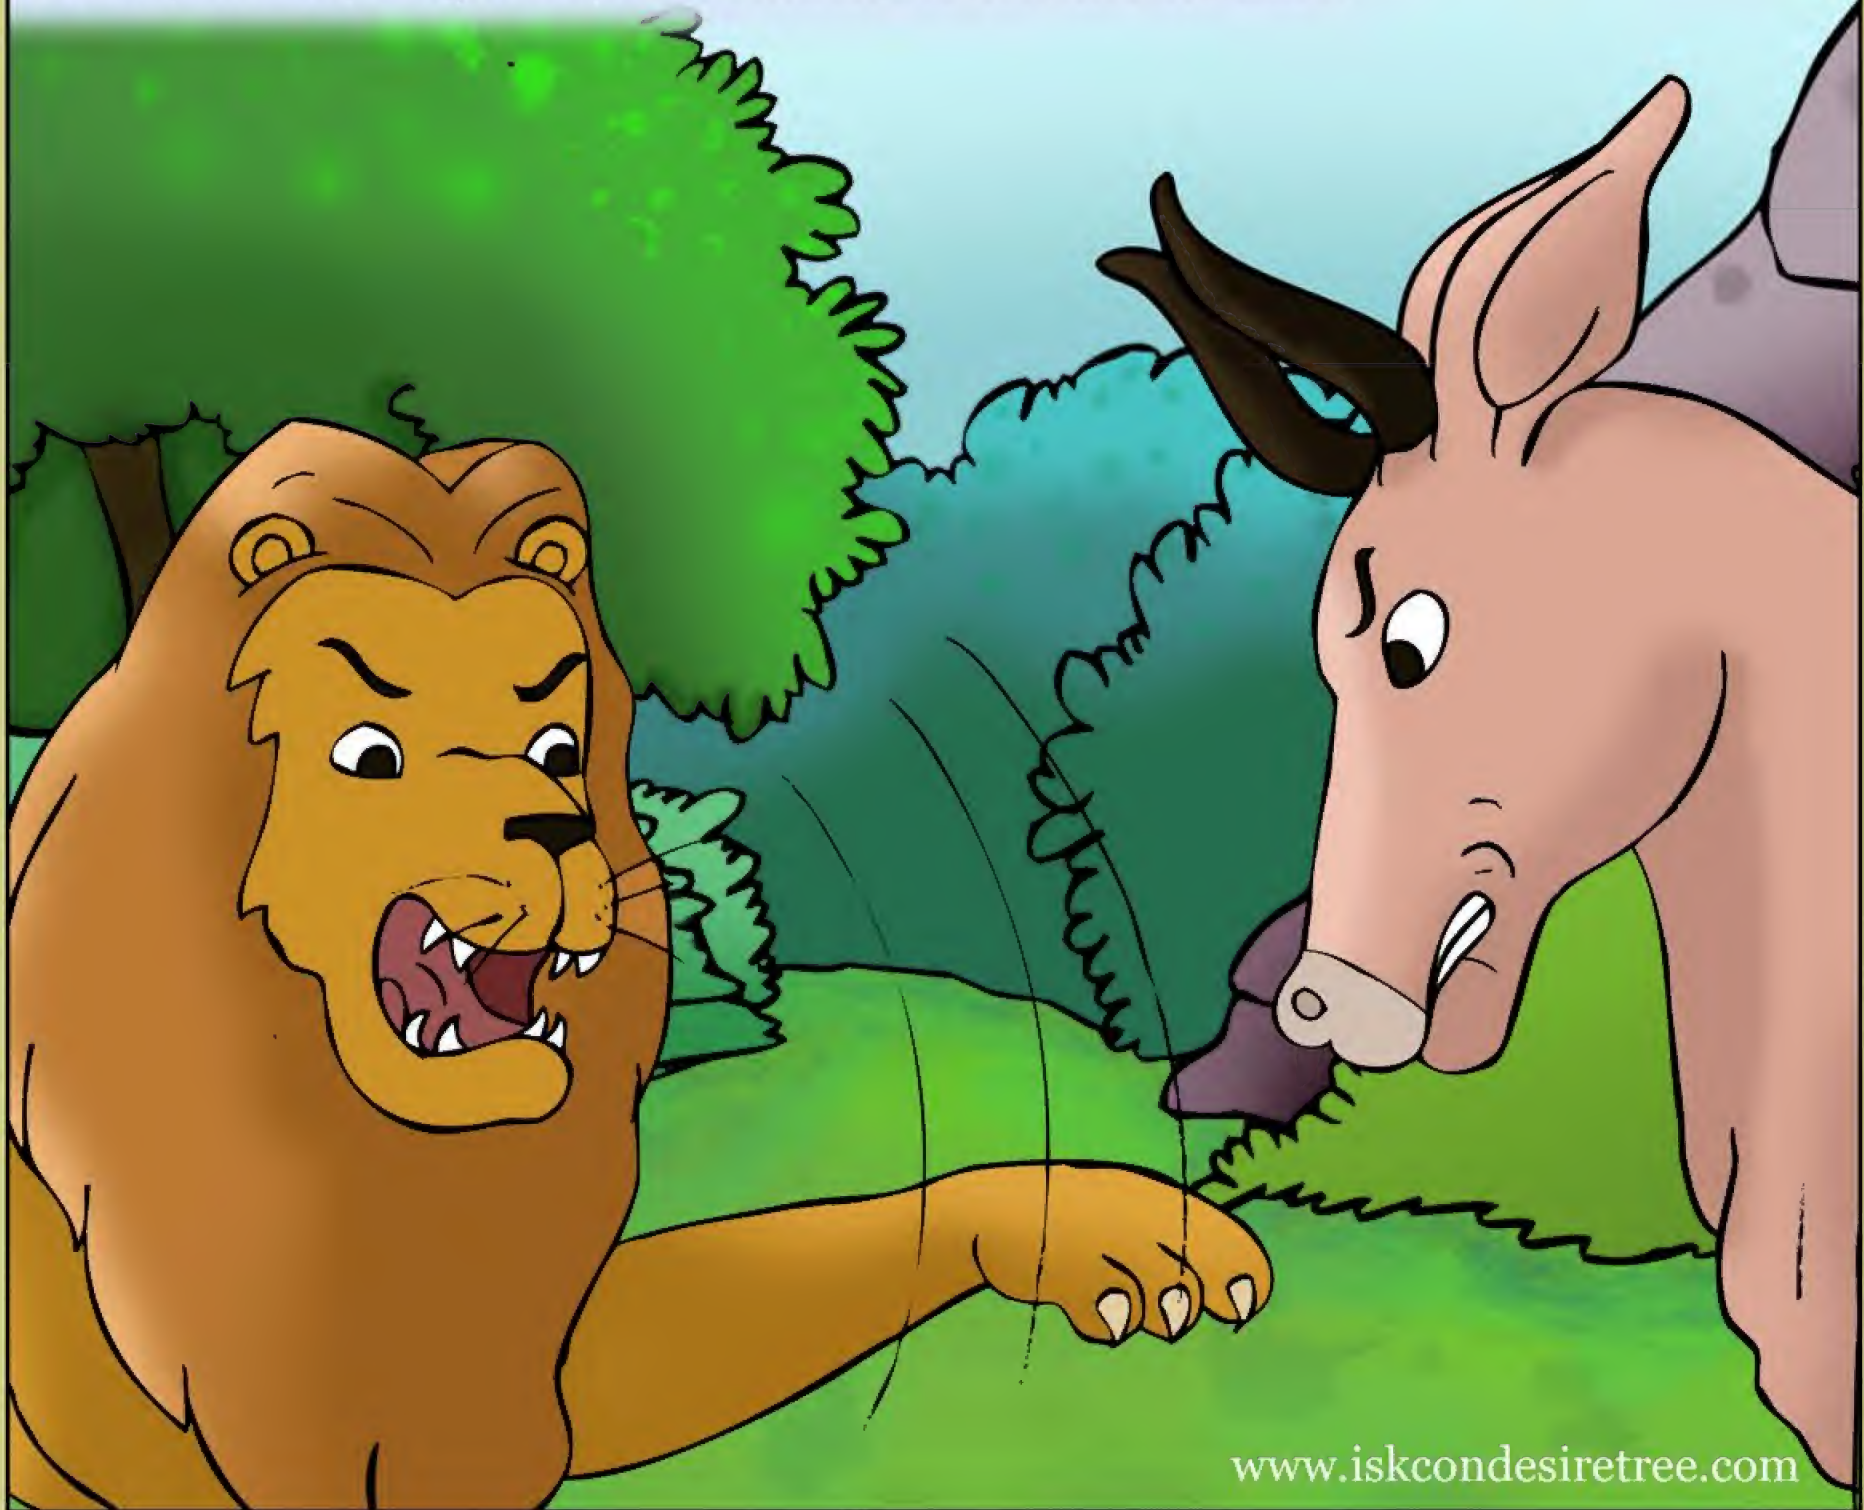

My friend,
I just heard the lion saying that you are a coward & that you need him to protect you from other animals.

This enraged the bull. Gradually, the jackal was successful in seeding suspicion in their minds

Hence, one day a fight erupted between the lion and the bull...

...and at the end of the bloody fight both were dead. Thus the jackal became successful in his plan.

Ha! Ha!
You fools. You had no faith on your friendship and thus lost everything.

Moral: Faith is essential for lasting relationships.